Applicant's independent claim 1: The present in invention is directed to a device, the independent claim identifies the patentably distinct feature "an arbitration function, communicatively coupled to the antenna switching function and the first and second wireless telecommunications functions, and adapted to directly control the first and second wireless telecommunications functions and access to the first and second antennas by the first and second wireless telecommunications functions according to a defined prioritization scheme of a plurality of assumptions and priorities based on an end-use application, wherein the arbitration function is provided on a packet-by-packet basis". Applicant's independent claim 1 comprises a particular combination of elements, which is neither taught nor-suggested by prior art.

Applicant's independent claim 14: The present in invention is directed to a method of providing simultaneous operation of disparate wireless telecommunication technologies within a single device, the independent claim identifies the patentably distinct feature "providing an arbitration function using a probabilistic approach communicatively coupled to the antenna switching function and the first and second wireless telecommunications functions, wherein the arbitration function is provided on a packet-by-packet basis; providing a defined prioritization scheme
